Morning Oregonian.

DAILY — THE UNION

VOL. XX.—NO. 6171. PORTLAND, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1881. PRICE—TEN CENTS.

GENERAL NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Still no Result.

Nashville, Jan. 25.—Bailey withdrawn. 27th ballot: Maynard, 41; Taylor, 31; Bright, 5; rest scattering. Recess was taken to greet Senator Bailey.

Big Mining Scheme.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 25.—The schooner Joseph P. [illegible], of Portland, Maine, sails hence to-night with a mining expedition for Atrato river, Panama. She is commanded by Lt. S. C. Payne, U. S. N. The expedition is provided with valuable charts, many of which belong to the government. The capital of the company, represented by experts on board, is [illegible],000, every dollar of which has been taken up. Stock is held by parties in New York, Maine, Virginia, New Hampshire and Rhode Island, while it is a fact worthy of mention that nearly every officer of the navy, who has been on the river, holds certificates of stock. The company's counsel in South America is Col. Eladeo Ferer, ex-governor of Chico. Two of the directors of the company—Wm. Sargent and Wm. Curtis, both of Portland, Me.—accompany the expedition. The machinery for working the bed of the river was built at Bristol and has been tested. The members of the expedition are young men, mostly graduates of leading colleges.

Preparing for Active Work.

St. Louis, Jan. 25.—Col. H. C. Nutt of Chicago, representative of the Mexico Central railway, of which Thomas Nickerson of Boston is president, has returned from El Paso on the Rio Grande, whither he went to determine where the road should cross the river. This he decided and also secured over [illegible] acres of land at El Paso for a depot, shops, etc., for the road. Col. Nutt says that engineers are now in the field surveying the line to Chihuahua, thence to the City of Mexico, and that track laying south of El Paso will probably commence by April 1st, or as soon as the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road reaches that point.

Boiler Explosion.

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 25.—The steamer Minnie exploded a boiler on Bordilbo bar and the engineer, captain and fireman were killed.

Texas' New Senator.

Galveston, Jan. 7.—The News' Austin special says: Maxey was elected senator on the first ballot. Vote in the senate—Maxey 22, Throckmorton 8, Davis 1; house—Maxey 51, Throckmorton 34, Davis [illegible] Hogan 1.

New Jersey Senatorship.

Pennsylvania Senatorship.

New York, Jan. 25.—Silver pars, 111; money, 5@6; governments, quiet and generally steady; stocks closed strong: Western Union, 115¼; Fargo, 110; New York Central, 150½; Erie, 48¾; Panama, 226; Union Pacific, 119¾, bonds, 113¾; Central Pacific, [illegible], and bonds, 113½; Sutro, 1¾.

The Railroad War.

The railroad war still continues. A few days ago the Pennsylvania railroad company reduced its emigrant rate 40 per cent. To-day the Erie and New York Central did the same. The following are special rates at which tickets are sold at Castle Garden to all comers, whether they be emigrants or not: Cleveland, $5 77; Chicago, $7 80; St. Louis, $9 25; Cincinnati, $6 90; Louisville, $8 56, etc.

Score in the Walking Contest.

New York, Jan. 25.—Score of pedestrians at 9 o'clock: Hughes, 216; Curran, 179; Albert, 206; Barnes, 197; Mignault, 165; Vint, 200; Cole, 209; Krohne, [illegible]; Feeny, 190; Laconse, 165; Howard, 193; Campana, [illegible]; Burke, 148; Phillips, 157.

Hatch vs. The Telegraph Company—Gould Accuses Hatch of Duplicity.

New York, Jan. 25.—The case of Rufus Hatch vs. the A. & P. & W. U. Telegraph Co., to prevent their consolidation, was called in the supreme court in chambers to-day. The session was taken up in reading affidavits of officials of various companies denying that the purpose of the consolidation was inimical to the public. Jay Gould made an affidavit that he was director in the defendant corporation, the American Union, that prior to the consolidation negotiations Rufus Hatch came to him and made representations about the advantages that would come from a union of the companies, that Hatch said he was getting up a pool of 100,000 shares of Western Union in anticipation of the harmonious working of the companies, and asked him (Gould) to go in with him. Gould's affidavit further proceeds to say the consolidation was largely influenced and brought about by the advice of Rufus Hatch himself. An affidavit was received from Washington Connor in which he said he had an interview with Rufus Hatch on the 19th of January, in which the latter stated that he was owner of a quantity of the capital stock of the American Union Co.; that he was disgusted at being left out of the deal, as he called it, and that he ought to have been taken into it. He suggested that his shares of American Union should be taken by them at the price Western Union was then selling at. He also had no ill feeling toward [illegible] but had toward Vanderbilt.

Fire in Colorado.

[illegible], Jan. 25.—Fire at Alamosa early this morning destroyed the Carter house, an adjoining saloon and a Chinese laundry. Loss, about $7000; insurance, [illegible].

Sentenced.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 25.—W. L. Webb (white) of [illegible] county, convicted in the U. S. court of [illegible] voting, was sentenced to-day to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $250.

More Snow in the South.

[illegible], Jan. 25.—Very heavy snow prevailed to-day along the Wilmington & Weldon railroad.

The New Telegraph Company.

[illegible], Jan. 25.—Permission to organize a new telegraph company, with $1,000,000 capital was requested to-day, and stock books will be opened at once for subscriptions. It is believed the telegraph company outlined in Saturday's dispatches will push forward its enterprise [illegible] to New York, and subsequently to principal cities in the east, and between here [illegible] $600,000 will be paid up.

A Dishonest Pawnbroker Convicted.

[illegible] The jury to-night in the criminal court found [illegible] Friedburg guilty of three counts of the indictment against him, for larceny in receiving and [illegible] stolen goods, and sentenced him to four years in the penitentiary. Friedburg is a pawnbroker of evil repute, who for many years has been a "fence" for the worst kind of thieves, burglars and pickpockets. This was an aggravated case.

Sickness and Distress in Chicago.

A terrible case of neglect and disease came under the observation of the health department to-day. [illegible] Mrs. Eade and five children, living in a [illegible] tenement house on the north side, were recently stricken down with smallpox. The parents recovered quickly, but the children were more seriously ill, and last night one of them died after two days suffering without medical attendance. The others are in a critical condition. The facts were not made known to officials through neighbors who lived above them, making arrangements with an undertaker for interment. Smallpox, diphtheria and a disease which in summer would probably become Asiatic cholera, are increasing materially the city's mortality. There seems to be no well-established cause for the unusual amount of sickness and physicians are puzzled by it.

CALLED TO ACCOUNT.

New York, Jan. 25.—An action involving several matters of importance to investors in mining stocks has been begun in the supreme court by A. N. Holmes, [illegible], against Jerome B. Chaffee, as president, David Moffatt, Jr., as vice president of the Little Pittsburg Consolidated Mining Company. The principal question to be determined in case the allegations of complaint are proved, is whether the controlling officers of a mining company can be made personally liable for damages in knowingly making misrepresentation as to the value of their mines to induce investment of capital. Holmes alleges that the larger part of the pocket of ore of silver and lead on the company's property, covering one-third of an acre, had been worked out and exhausted previous to the formation of this company; that defendants invited a large party of persons from New York and other places to visit Leadville, and that by means of statements and representations made, caused them to believe that there were several millions of dollars' worth of ore in sight, etc., etc.

Holmes then recites some of the personal representations that were made to him by Chaffee and others to induce him to purchase stock, among them that there were reserves sufficient to pay dividends of $100,000 per month for at least three years; that the property was worth so much more than $20 a share; that Chaffee's daughter at his suggestion had sold her government bonds to purchase Little Pittsburg at that price; and that it could be purchased at that price only from him. Holmes says that on the strength of them he invested $5000 in stock at $20 a share. He now declares them to be untrue at the time made to deceive and defraud him; that the amount of the reserves did not exceed one million dollars; that stock was not really at the time worth [illegible], and that Chaffee and daughter had not made the investment he pretended. The third cause of action is based chiefly upon a report made by [illegible] in August, 1879, to the directors, which induced Holmes to put in $3000 more. For all his losses Holmes asks $20,000 damages. Answer has not been served.

MEXICO.

Mexican Railroad Work.

City of Mexico, Jan. 19.—An agent of the Central has arrived at Paso Del Norte. He announces that work will begin on the Mexican side as soon as the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe road reaches the Rio Grande. The Sullivan company has purchased the railroad from Zacatecas to Guadalupe.

[illegible] John Kelly would consent to lecture for the benefit of a fund to pay the hotel bills of the re[illegible].

WASHINGTON CITY.

Sherman on the Refunding Bill.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Secretary Sherman before the senate finance committee to-day, took the position that the refunding bill should be so amended as to make the bonds 5-20s, with interest at 3½ or less, at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury, and thought that treasury funding notes could be floated at 3 per cent. without change in the house provision for redemption any time after one year from issue.

Some People who are "Well Fixed."

Treasury records show that Vanderbilt owns $50,000,000 in U. S. bonds, the quarterly interest on which is $500,000. Other members of the family have $5,000,000 more, with a quarterly interest of $50,000. Louis McLane has $3,000,000 in bonds, with a quarterly interest income of $50,000. J. C. Flood has $10,000,000, with a quarterly revenue from the investment of $100,000, and Miss Jennie Flood, his daughter, still unmarried, has in her name the sum of $2,000,000 in bonds, and quarterly pocket money therefrom of $25,000. Christine Nillson has $78,000 in 5s of 1881 and $22,000 in 6s of 1881. Lotta, the actress, has $50,000 in 5s, and Emma Thursby has $14,000 in 6s.

The Usual Report.

The house elections committee by a party vote report in favor of Yeates against Martin, republican.

Railroad Conference.

Washington, Jan. 25.—A conference was held this afternoon at the attorney general's office between representatives of the Central Pacific railroad and the government in regard to a controversy which has arisen between the government and the railroad company in regard to a dividend recently declared by the company. Secretary Schurz, Assistant Attorney General McCammon and Auditor of Railroad Accounts French representing the government, and Vice President C. P. Huntington, accompanied by Messrs. Shellabarger and Wilson, counsel for the railroad, were present. The conference lasted several hours, but no definite adjustment of the question at issue was reached at the time of adjournment.

Later.—Vice President Huntington says to-night with reference to the conference held to-day between representatives of the Central Pacific Railroad and the government, that it was without result so far, but that there would be another to-morrow in which he hoped to be able to show that Auditor French has misinterpreted the figures furnished by the company's books. We have earned our last dividend, said Huntington, and unless we are enjoined we intend to pay it to the stockholders.

The Dakota Bill.

The house committee on territories took action to-day upon Delegate Bennett's bill to provide for division of the territory of Dakota and for admission into the union of the southern portion as the state of Dakota, and voted to report the bill adversely to the house.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Sothern's Funeral.

London, Jan. 25.—The remains of the late Sothern, actor, were buried to-day at Southampton in accordance with his own request in the grave containing the remains of his sister, Mrs. Gwyne. Sothern had ordered that his funeral shroud be strictly private and nobody was invited to the funeral. The party left Sothern's late residence in London at 6 this morning, and arrived at Southampton at 11:20, six private carriages following the hearse contained among others Lyttleton Sothern, Sam. Sothern, Edwin Booth, Dion Boucicault, Sir John Reid, Edgar Pemberton. Robert Wyndham, a personal friend, read the burial service.

A Fiendish Attempt.

Lompoc, Jan. 25.—Great excitement prevails here. Some parties, unknown at present, tried to blow up the Lompoc hotel last night about 1 by throwing bombshells in through windows. Four were thrown, only one exploding, breaking doors, windows and partitions and causing great confusion. Two were thrown into the sleeping room of Mrs. and Mr. Batchfords, and one into the billiard room, but did not explode, and last in a shoe shop which is part of the hotel, doing the above damage. Had they all exploded the building would have been completely destroyed and several lives lost. The size of the above bombshells was two feet two inches in circumference and weigh nearly six pounds each.

An Opinion.

London, Jan. 25.—In the house of commons to-day Chamberlain, president of the board of trade, said that the government cannot prohibit importation of oleomargarine or other compounds.

Collision.

The steamer State of Indiana, which arrived at Glasgow to-day from New York was in collision with and sank a steamer trading to Spain in the river Clyde. The State of Indiana received very little damage.

Trouble at Bolton.

Bolton, Jan. 25.—At a crowded meeting of operative cotton spinners to-day, it was resolved that notice for advanced wages be withdrawn until March. A strike therefore is averted. A riot occurred to-day between miners and police at Phillmersdale and Clydesly, near Bolton. One man was killed and many police and miners severely injured.

Trial of the Land Leaguers.

Dublin, Jan. 25.—Judge Fitzgerald concluded his charge to the jury. He asked the jury to perform its duty with courage springing from a desire to act conscientiously without fear or favor and replying to counsel for the traversers, the judge said if his directions to the jury were wrong in point of law he could be put right by appeal to the superior court. MacDonnough began his argument quoting authorities. Parnell entered the court and was loudly cheered by the gallery. There was great excitement in court.

"We are Not Agreed, my Lord."

Dublin, Jan. 25—6 P. M.—The jury did not return into court until sent for by the judges at 5 o'clock. The foreman said they had not agreed, nor were they likely to agree.

The jury were discharged at 7:45 o'clock, the foreman stating that it was utterly impossible they could agree. A juror had previously stated they were ten to two, but the judge said he could only receive a unanimous verdict. Great excitement prevailed and it was heightened when the judge said: After the exhibition of to-day in court he could not expect there would be a free and unanimous verdict.

A torchlight procession with bands of music awaited the return of Parnell from the court. He left the city for London shortly after conclusion of the trial.

The first news of the result of the state trial in Dublin reached the house of commons in a telegram from the solicitor of the traversers to Sexton, stating that ten jurors found a verdict of not guilty.

Demonstration by Leaguers.

A mob of some 400 persons last night groaned and hissed before the house of one of the jurors supposed to have favored conviction.

How the Verdict was Received.

Dublin, Jan. 25.—As soon as the result of the state trial became known in Dungarvan the town was brilliantly illuminated, bands paraded the streets, mention of the traversers names was cheered and the surrounding hills were ablaze for 20 miles.

The "Times" on the Debate in the House of Commons.

London, Jan. 25.—The Times in a leading article discussing the debate in the house of commons last night says: We believe that the ministry are prepared for the painful necessity which may now be said to have arisen, and we do not think there can be any substantial difficulty among sensible men in adopting means to prevent the parliamentary institution from being nullified and turned into a laughing stock by unscrupulous persons.

Precautionary Measure.

A detachment of troops has been ordered from Portsmouth to Weedon to protect government stores there, owing to information received by the authorities.

Preparing for the Worst.

The mayor of Liverpool has been communicating with the commander of the troops in the district, and the captain of a guard ship in the Mersey, to arrange for the landing of seamen for co-operation with the military, in the event of some suspected action on the part of Irishmen.

Discharged.

Galway, Jan. 26.—The men arrested on suspicion of taking part in the murder of Lord Mountmorris have been discharged.

French Freedom of the Press.

Paris, Jan. 25.—Proprietors of Marsellaise have been condemned to pay a fine of 1000 francs, in contumacion for defaming the army and eulogizing the regicide. The manager of the same paper has been sentenced to a year's imprisonment and a fine of 2000 francs, and Gen. Cluseret has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment and a fine of 300 francs.

Dullness in the Russian Cloth Trade.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—Thornton, an English millionaire, and owner of the largest cloth manufactories in the world, has discharged 1500 weavers at a stroke and announces that his mill will be closed in a few days if trade does not improve. Other Russian cotton mills are on short time or closing because of the accumulations of stock and slack trade. The failure of last year's harvest deprives peasants of the means to buy cotton goods. The cloth trade is in similar condition.

South Africa.

A dispatch from Durban says the troop ship Euphrates has arrived from Bombay with reinforcements of artillery, cavalry and foot, 1313 strong.

A correspondent at Durban says: Basutos are in want of food and tired of fighting.

Dublin, Jan. 25.—Three baronies in Roscommon county have been declared in a state of disturbance.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Buenos Ayres, Jan. 25.—Two regiments of Chilians have disbanded. Chilian and Argentine ministers of foreign affairs have expressed the belief that peace between these two countries will be maintained. Complete understanding exists between them and the treaty is expected to be signed when the congress meets.

The conduct of the republicans of Maine, in conceding Plaisted's election, must strike the bold democracy as painfully lacking in "backbone." Chalmers and Hendricks should make some observations upon it.

THE BRITISH COMMONS.

The Irish Land Bills.

London, Jan. 25.—In moving the bill for the protection of life and property in Ireland last night in the house of commons Forster said that he had never been clearer about anything in his life than of the necessity of the measure he introduced; but if he had ever expected that the unpleasant duty would be forced upon him he would never have become secretary of Ireland.

Dillon declared that the retrospective clauses of the first bill were evidently aimed at the traversers.

The house of commons, upon Gladstone's moving a resolution giving precedence to Forster's bill for protection to life and property in Ireland, E. Dwyer Gray (home rule), member from Carlow county, rose to a question of order, saying the resolution was irregular.

The speaker ruled the resolution in order, and Gladstone moved it, strongly appealing to the house to aid in the passage of the bill.

O'Connor (home rule) opposed the motion.

Gladstone in moving his resolution said it would be in the last degree impracticable for the government to bring forward a land bill with all its intricacies and details before they had dealt with the state of things existing in Ireland.

Finnegan, liberal and advanced nationalist, continued discussion on the Gladstone resolution, and in the course of his speech was called to order four times for irrelevancy.

Milbank, liberal, moved that Finnegan be no more heard as he had been called to order four times.

Finnegan was proceeding to renew his observations when the speaker said: "If Finnegan disregards the authority of the chair I know what course to take."

Finnegan then obeyed the ruling of the chair.

Arthur O'Connor, home ruler, moved as an amendment that the order of the day be now read.

Biggar, home ruler, having several times been called to order for irrelevancy, and having ignored the ruling of the chair, the speaker named him as disregarding the authority of the chair.

Forster, chief secretary for Ireland, moved that Biggar be suspended from serving in the house for the remainder of the day's sitting. The motion for suspension of Biggar was carried, 160 to 30.

The speaker then summoned Biggar to withdraw and the latter withdrew to the strangers' gallery.

Gladstone opposed and the adjournment motion was negatived, 260 to 35.

Dwyer Gray, home ruler, moved adjournment of the house owing to the absence of Biggar, who he said, was deeply interested in the debate. This motion was negatived, 277 to 34.

Byrne, home ruler, renewed the motion for adjournment of debate.

Gladstone declared if the debate had proceeded without obstruction the government would have consented to adjournment; but the home rulers have thrown down the challenge. The government advised the house to continue the debate until concluded.

Sir William Harcourt, home secretary, explained that the debate would continue until the house had decided on Gladstone's original motion.

Several Irish members continued the discussion and the house was still sitting at 3 A. M.

The Home Rule Programme.

London, Jan. 25.—Home rule members held a meeting yesterday, at which they resolved to permit division on Gladstone's resolution during the week, probably on Thursday, but decided to oppose the coercion bills to the last extremity.

NOTES FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Washington, Jan. 14.—In forecasting the probabilities as to republican control of the senate after the 4th of March, the partisans of that side leave Judge Davis out of their calculations entirely, as they consider that he is at last safely lodged in the bosom of the democrats. A day or two ago an applicant for office carried a petition to Judge Davis and asked him to head it with his signature. He looked it over, and then said to the party: "You had better take this to some republicans and get them to sign it first."

BLAINE AND CONKLING.

The attention of Senator Blaine was yesterday called to the widely-published statement that there had been a perfect reconciliation and a burial of past differences between him and Senator Conkling. Senator Blaine laughed at the idea, and said that any one who knew him would pronounce such a statement false without the trouble of an inquiry. There was, when Mr. Blaine went into the senate, a reconciliation between him and Mr. Conkling, but only so far as acting together for the principles of the republican party was concerned. They never got beyond a nod of recognition after the so-called reconciliation, and that nod has, within the past nine months, been entirely suspended. The difference between these two gentlemen arose when they were both members of the house. Blaine, a comparatively new man, chafed at the manner in which Conkling treated all his associates, got upon the floor one day and delivered the speech which has often been reprinted, in which he scored Conkling without mercy, and in the broadest terms.

LORING DID IT, THEY SAY.

The statement is published that Dr. Loring, of Massachusetts, representative from the Essex district, compiled the article on the Nicaragua canal which appears over Gen. Grant's name.

SENATOR EDMUNDS.

"Do you think Senator Edmunds has given up all idea of going on the supreme bench?" asked your correspondent to-day of one of the senator's most intimate friends.

"He says he has no further aspirations that way," was the reply, "but is content now to remain in the senate and do what he can there for his country. I know, as do his other friends, that he has always looked with favor upon the idea of ending his days upon the supreme bench, and that a few months ago he would have been gratified to have received an appointment there. No vacancy, however, existed, and in the meanwhile he had again been chosen senator for six years from the 3d of March next. Notwithstanding he says he is content to remain where he is I believe if a vacancy on the bench occurs, and the position is tendered him, that he will not decline it. If, when Judge Hunt retires, the vacancy thus created is offered to the senator, his aspiration to go upon the bench will be sure to return, and the senate will lose one of its most valued members."

ROSCOE TAKES A TRICK.

In the senate executive session this afternoon the nomination of William H. Haskell to be postmaster at Albany, N. Y., vice W. H. Craig, whose commission expires March 1, 1881, was reported back from the committee on postoffices and post roads with recommendation for confirmation. Senator Conkling thereupon moved that it be recommitted for further consideration, and in support of this motion proceeded to make legal argument designed to show that Craig's term of office will not expire until four years from the date of his qualification as postmaster, which was subsequent to the 4th of March, 1877, and, that, therefore, President Hayes has no power to fill this office in advance of its vacation by a removal, to effect which, he must explicitly propose and the senate consent to such removal.

At the conclusion of Conkling's remarks his motion was agreed to without a dissenting vote or any debate, further than a remark by Coke, who reported the nomination, that he regretted the committee had not invited an expression of Conkling's views in regard to the nomination before taking action.

THE CHINESE BILL.

The Senators show a Disposition to Shirk its Consideration.

The expected regular weekly meeting of the senate committee on foreign relations to consider the Chinese treaties did not take place to-day. The committee consists of nine members and only four of them put in an appearance, namely: Senators Eaton, Morgan, Pendleton and Kirkwood. Senators Hamlin and Carpenter are confined at their residences by illness and the others were variously occupied, this morning, Hill, of Georgia, attending the session of the committee which is investigating how the Chinese treaties got out, Johnson, of Virginia, being engaged with his special committee on the cattle bill, and Conkling preparing to deliver an argument in the supreme court this afternoon. There being no quorum Chairman Eaton was unable even to obtain sanction for his proposition to request authority from the senate for the committee to hold meetings for consideration of the treaties during the senate sessions and he is so discouraged by the apparent lack of interest displayed in the subject thus far that he doubts the utility of again attempting to get a quorum of the committee together before the time for next Tuesday's regular meeting. The delay in acting upon the treaties is partially explained by what seems to have been a disposition of some of the senators to wait for expressions of public sentiment concerning them, especially from the Pacific coast. The delay has, however, been so prolonged that there now seems to be practically no chance whatever for obtaining legislation at this session to carry the treaties into effect, and it must be added that there is to-day no certainty of the treaties themselves being finally acted on before the next senate convenes in special session, which will be shortly after the 4th of March.

A Texas Statesman in Trouble.

[Galveston News.]

Last summer a number of prominent statesmen at Austin went in bathing in the Colorado river. One of them, who afterward stumped Indiana for Hancock, is a first-rate swimmer, although he is well known to be the stoutest man of his height in Texas. "Now, gentlemen," said Dick, for that is his name, plunging into the water, "I'll bet you I can beat you all to the sand bar." The others accepted the wager. Now, the stout party, who is broader than he is long, actually did outswim the rest, and just as he was about twenty feet from the sand bar he ran ashore. "Hurrah!" he cried, "I've struck land;" and so he had, but on attempting to stand on his feet went out of sight, for the water was over his head, being six feet deep, although it was too shallow for for him to swim in, he being thicker, than he was long. It was with difficulty that he was saved.

Nearly a week has passed without a fresh democratic blunder. This is unprecedented.

CONGRESSIONAL.

House.

Washington, Jan. [illegible] Senate amendments to the military academy bill were concurred in.

King said that he would call up the electoral count resolution on Wednesday.

The house went into committee on the post office appropriation bill.

After an ineffectual attempt by Burch to get through an amendment to pay two years' salary to postal employes killed on railroad cars while serving—the idea to be to relieve families of the postal clerks burned in the Tioga accident—Upson's amendment, increasing the appropriation for inland transportation by steamboats from $880,000 to $1,000,000, was rejected.

Haskell's amendment increasing the star route appropriation from $5,875,000 to $6,500,000, was opposed by Cannon because the committee had appropriated half a million more than the present appropriation. He and Blackburn attacked the second assistant postmaster general, the amendment was rejected.

Davis, of Colorado, offered an amendment to authorize the postmaster general to pay to the colonies of New Zealand and New South Wales so much of the cost of overland transportation of British closed mails, to and from Australia, as he may deem just, not to exceed half of said cost, and appropriating $41,000 for the purpose. Davis advocated the adoption of his amendment, mentioning the importance of maintaining relations with those colonies. During the past year exports of American products to Australia had amounted to $800,000, while imports from it amount to only $100,000, and it was politic for the United States to continue upon friendly terms with that colony. The amendment was agreed to, 61 to 27.

The committee rose and the bill passed. The house adjourned by a combination of republicans and a few democrats to prevent the consideration of the electoral count resolution.

Senate.

Logan renewed his motion to take up the retirement bill.

Lamar favored it, saying that he supposed no one would have objected to Grant's retirement with proper rank at any time.

Edmunds, from the judiciary committee, reported back a resolution of Jan. 27, 1880, instructing the committee to inquire whether any discrimination or differences of treatment have been made in settlement with certain railway companies, under the act of Feb. 27, 1875, providing for the settlement of matters in dispute. He said that the committee had heard that the executive officers of the government and counsel for a particular railway company interested in the question and were of the opinion that no discrimination or difference of treatment under the law had been made with reference to contracts by executive officers. The committee was discharged from further consideration.

CALIFORNIA.

Scarcity of Ships.

San Francisco, Jan. 25.—The Evening Bulletin this evening says: We have to-day to chronicle an event that has rarely happened before, namely: That there is not a disengaged ship in port suitable for wheat. The last one was taken yesterday to load for Liverpool direct at 73s 6d. This was for a large American ship. A British iron ship was re-chartered at the close of last week for Cork at 77s 6d. This rate has been paid once before this season and it is the highest in several years.

To Scotland's Bard.

San Francisco, Jan. 25.—The hundred and twenty-second birthday of the anniversary of Robert Burns was celebrated by St. Andrew's society at Red Men's hall to-night, with literary and vocal exercises and a ball.

Kearney Carries the Crowd.

At the Irish-American Hall to-night discussion on the Chinese treaty took place. Kearney led for the adoption of the treaty and Stephen Maybell led the opposition. After a debate of two and a half hours, vote being taken, a majority of the audience which filled the hall were in favor of the adoption of the treaty.

Earthquakes and Weather.

Three earthquakes in this city within two hours; all light.

Raining at Shasta and snowing at Downieville to-night.

Grangers' Convention.

The Grangers' Business Association have called a convention of farmers for Feb. 4th, to consider the depression in the wheat market and increase in ocean freights and other topics.

The New California Senator.

POINTED POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

Mr. S. S. Cox says his frank was forged. Who did it? Perhaps it was the man who forged the Morey letter. Perhaps Barnum knows. Hunt the rascal down.

The "machine," both at Albany and Harrisburg, seems to be well oiled and in good running order. There is a little squeaking, but not enough to speak of.

It is intimated by the organ of Gen. Mahone's party in Virginia, the Richmond Whig, that he will vote with the republicans in organizing the new senate. This will convince every democrat in the land that the general is a bold, bad man.

Secretary Sherman goes to the senate as the unanimous choice of his party, a result which every unprejudiced observer of the situation in Ohio predicted. The "damaging disclosures" about his hotel expenses, which his large minded enemies made such a pother about, seem to have been squandered on the desert air. It is perhaps too much to expect that he will be relieved from this sort of warfare in the future. A large number of industrious persons would be thrown out of employment if the political squirt-guns were to be retired permanently from service.

Of course the reference of the postmaster general's report on democratic abuse of the franking privilege to a democratic committee is the burial of it. Nothing will ever be heard of it again. Glover's experience has taught the party that the only safety is not to investigate at all, but to suppress. The report of the Potter committee on the ciphers has never been published. The only record in existence of that famous inquiry is to be found in the columns of the newspapers. The democrats did not dare to put the damning evidence in the convenient form of a public document.

If Barnum really contemplates starting a scapegoat, he can get some valuable hints about the way to do it from Mr. Tilden. He will thus be enabled to avoid the mistake of overloading the goat. It will be remembered that in 1877 Mr. Tilden tried the experiment of putting all the burden on one goat, but that he was forced ultimately to raise the size of the procession to three, by taking in Moses, Manton Marble and Smith Weed. Barnum may have to do the same thing; may have to employ even a larger number. Indeed, it looks now as if the procession would not move at all unless he puts himself at the head of it with the Morey letter on his back.

Blaine on Grant.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Senator Blaine, commenting to-day upon the bill to place Gen. Grant on the retired list, says that it ought to be done, on the ground of fair play. "The people of the United States," said Senator Blaine, "took Gen. Grant from a good life position and made him president. There is in many cases a good deal of nonsense talked about the 'office seeking the man,' but, in Gen. Grant's case, at least for his first term, the office did seek the man.

The people asked him to give up his life position and serve them in an office of a short tenure, and I think now, on the ground of fair play and square dealing, the people owe it to Gen. Grant to leave him in as good a position as they found him when they demanded that he should serve them as president. The democrats ought to vote for it as well as the republicans, and I hope in the end they will do so. They are, of course, feeling sore and cross just now over their defeat, for which they consider Gen. Grant in part responsible, but that feeling will wear off in time, and the justice and propriety of bearing Gen. Grant's name on the United States army roll, it is hoped, will be so apparent that every one will be disposed to vote for it. It would require explanation in history if congress should refuse to restore to the army list the name of the general of all the armies that conquered the rebellion."

"But you were reported, senator, a short time since, as being opposed to President Hayes' recommendation to confer the rank of captain-general on Grant."

"Yes, and I am opposed to it now. Captain-general is an infelicitous title, which the president probably recommended without giving it sufficient consideration. Captain-general, as used on the American continent, is a Spanish title, intimately associated in the public mind with the oppression of Cuba and with the cruelties and atrocities of the slave trade. The rank of general was created for Grant, and is one to which he should be restored with full pay and emoluments. Whether Gen. Grant be worth a million or only a thousand, has nothing to do with it. If the United States owe anything to Gen. Grant they have no right to inquire into the circumstances as a preliminary to payment. I think it in very bad taste to be taking an inventory of Gen. Grant's property, or to be discussing in any way his financial condition. That belongs to him as a private gentleman, and is not matter for public discussion."

THE VIRGINIA READJUSTERS.

Their Position Explained by Gen. Mahone.

History of the Various Movements and Schemes in Connection with the State Debt.

General Mahone, U. S. Senator-elect from Virginia, elected by "Readjusters," has made a statement to the country concerning his financial course and explaining the position of his party. It is a long and elaborate document, filling several columns. Below is a fair synopsis of its leading points:

At the outbreak of the war, said Gen. Mahone, the property in Virginia was $317,000,000 greater than now. Then her debt was $31,188,000; now the McCulloch bill, proposed by the so-called Funders or Debt-payers, would make it $31,229,671. Then a tax levy of 40 cents produced a revenue of $1,936,874; now a levy of 50 cents produces $2,100,000, and the state cannot stand any more. The aggregate of city, county, state and federal exactions is 3⅓ per cent, or $3.33⅓ on every hundred dollars of our taxable values. The expenses of the government, including schools, amount at least to $1,400,000; before the readjusters came in they were $1,600,000. The annual surplus over expenses cannot exceed $700,000, and there is also a floating debt of $2,552,372. But the interest account under the McCulloch bill would average more than a million a year for ten years, and after that at 4 and 5 per cent, it would be still more.

In 1866-7 the debt was considered by the legislature. Without any correct knowledge, it assumed the whole debt of the old undivided state. Yet it levied a tax of only 14 cents which was insufficient for the support of government alone. Nothing more was done till the funding bill of 1870. This bill assumed that the taxable values of the state were $743,000,000, when in fact they were but $336,886,433, and this upon an assessment higher than in New York or Pennsylvania. This bill capitalized all interest which had accrued, and it undertook to fix a principal debt of $45,000,000, of which two-thirds or $30,000,000 was taken to be the part of Virginia, and the other third deferred and certified to a settlement with West Virginia. It gave the self-executing, tax-receivable coupons. Public opinion declared against this measure and elected a general assembly overwhelmingly against it.

Meantime $20,000,000 had been funded under it before the repealing act was passed. That portion was known as the consol debt. The remaining $10,000,000 not thus funded was known as the 'peeler debt. Under the operation of the funding measure and the repealing act the 'peeler creditors got no interest, while the consol creditors got only a portion of theirs by the sale of the tax-receivable coupons through brokers to speculators. The tax had been raised to fifty cents, but even with that levy the revenue was only $2,437,000, and the expenses of government were $1,600,000. Large arrearages followed, and there came a general demand for readjustment.

The plain alternatives were, readjustment or increased taxation. Yet out of 140 members of the house of delegates, but 13 of the so-called debtpayers would vote to increase the tax. Still later, with a new accumulation of unpaid interest to the amount of $5,700,000, and with a default in school moneys of $1,500,000, only four members would vote to increase the tax. The 'peeler holders received no interest at all, and many of the schools were closed. It was now 1877, and new state officers and a legislature were to be chosen. All parties agreed that the tax could not be increased. A large majority of members were elected pledged to readjust the debt within the income of the state. The Barbour bill was passed. It was only an appropriation bill for one year. It set apart 25 cents of the levy for government purposes, 10 cents for schools and 15 cents for interest. It was vetoed. Then came the Bacock-Fowler bill, which proposed to settle on the basis of the debt as claimed under the funding bill of 1871 with average interest at 3⅓ per cent; but it fell still-born and nothing came of it.

It was then that Mr. Hugh McCulloch appeared and tendered his services to effect a settlement with creditors. He was not a bondholder and did not represent the creditors, but two syndicates in New York and London. His bill embodied the proposition accepted and adopted on all sides that Virginia could not stand any increased taxation. In form and purport his scheme was an irrepealable contract between Virginia and the brokers. The accumulation of interest on the 'peeler and unfunded bonds now aggregating $5,000,000 was to be capitalized at fifty cents on the dollar; the old bonds to be refunded at par in the proportion of two dollars in consols to one in 'peelers; the new bonds to run for forty years at three per cent for the first ten years, four for the next twenty and five for the remaining ten. It was easily seen that this was a broker's job, and that the 'peeler creditors were to be atrociously victimized. They had received the equivalent of only two years' interest in eight years, and on each hundred dollar bond there was overdue $36 of interest. This portion of the debt was chiefly held by guardians and fiduciaries, and they were placed at the mercy of the syndicate. The 'peeler bonds could not be funded unless accompanied by consol bonds in the proportion of two of the latter to one of the former. Not having the consols or the means to buy them the 'peeler holders had no recourse except to hold on to their barren bonds or sell them. Nobody would buy them but Mr. McCulloch's agents, and for every hundred-dollar bond having accrued interest of $36 fundable at fifty cents, making a new capital of $118, the agent of the syndicates offered only $24. It was monstrous, but the 'peeler holders had no remedy. By this process with the whole ten millions of the 'peeler debt, the syndicate could have netted $[illegible],500,000 on that alone, without reckoning their commissions and profits from other sources on this funding job. The bill was thus a measure of force against the 'peeler holders and also against the consol holders through the tax certificates whose issue was compulsory in default of money for interest and which were sold at seventy-five cents on the dollar.

Following the passage of this bill came the canvass of the readjusters against it, who carried the state, won the legislature, and elected Gen. Mahone to the senate. Of their 20,000 majority 15,000 was white majority. Instead of a surplus under the McCulloch bill, as had been promised, the funders entirely miscalculated, and there was a large deficiency; the money for the schools and asylums was diverted, and a pressing floating debt of $2,552,372 was unprovided for. Under this popular condemnation the McCulloch bill was abandoned. On taking possession the readjusters found everything in disorder and confusion—defalcations, arrearages, the schools closed, the insane confined in common jails, and general demoralization. They set about an improvement of affairs. They first inquired, What is the real debt? and next, What can be the utmost stretch of our revenues for the payment of interest? The debt in 1861 was $31,188,000. The readjusters took two-thirds of it as the debt of Virginia. The principal being thus determined, the utmost reliable surplus admitted only three per cent. interest. The Riddleberger bill, which is the means of the readjuster party, proceeds to enforce equity on these principles. It was to have been submitted to the people and if ratified would have stood as the plighted faith of the state. But the governor vetoed it. The difference between the principal debt of Virginia under the Riddleberger and the McCulloch bill consists in the fact that the latter capitalized the simple and compound interest which accrued during the period of war and reconstruction. The readjusters reject this claim for interest as ruled out by the exigencies of war and other reasons. Independent of that, the exaction is beyond the ability of the state. The highest net revenue under the levy which nobody proposes to increase is $2,[illegible]00,000; the Government expenses require $800,000, the schools $500,000, leaving only $700,000 to be applied to the debt. This will pay 3 per cent. on $23,000,000, and leave a surplus of $100,000. But there is a pressing floating debt of $2,552,000, which, if the credit of the state is re-established, can be provided for by a short loan.

Three facts are to be remembered: First, that no party in Virginia proposes to increase the tax, and the debtpayers have several times refused to do so; second, that under every proposed scheme that the debtpayers have offered they have declined to levy a tax sufficient for its requirements; third, that every scheme proposed by the debtpayers has begun by repudiating a part of the public obligations, as was true of the original funding bill and of the McCulloch bill; fourth, that every party in Virginia, the so-called debtpayers included, purposes to readjust the debt.

General Mahone insists that he and his party are not repudiators, but that they take the honest method of determining the entire legitimate debt of the state and then paying the highest rate of interest which the resources and revenues of the state will permit. After meeting the imperative demands of the government and the schools on an economical basis, they propose to apply all their remaining means to the public creditor. General Mahone says: "We acknowledge every dollar that we believe we justly owe, and we intend to pay it, and if we ask an abatement in the rate of interest, it is our poverty and not our will consents."

In conclusion he says: "And with the readjustment of the debt as proposed, the readjusters come into full control of the commonwealth, remove the bourbon reactionists from place and power and start Virginia on a new career of progress, prosperity and greatness. Free suffrage for all men; a fair count at the polls; free education for all children, and an impartial administration of the constitution and the laws for all citizens will be the internal policy of the liberal party which shall have dethroned the Bourbons. And with respect to the nation and our sister states, the same liberal party will insist upon and inculcate honest submission to the results of the war; due observance of the constitutional amendments; the reconstruction acts and the other expressed and implied conditions that accompanied the restoration of Virginia to the union, the cultivation of fraternal relations with our fellow citizens of every quarter, and the removal of sectional jealousies and race distinctions in all our politics."

CONKLING AND GARFIELD.

[Cincinnati Commercial.]

Gath writes: If what I hear is true, and it seems well attested, the disadvantage of being Conkling's accessory in politics is manifest. Conkling was opposed to Arthur going on the ticket with Garfield, and for awhile was highly incensed at him for accepting. The story is, that after Garfield was nominated and the convention adjourned, the Ohio men, fearing that the machine would beat G[illegible] in New York, reached to his State for a candidate in the machine who would pull the ticket through. Clint Wheeler, Police Commissioner French, Postmaster James and many others told the Ohio men that Arthur was the man to nominate. Arthur was asked if he would accept, and he said he believed he would. He went to see Conkling, who was sour, sullen, sneering, etc., and said: "Mr. Conkling, I am offered the vice-presidential nomination, and I think I will take it."

"General Arthur," replied Conkling, "you don't want to take it. We don't want anything to do with this ticket. It is not offered to us out of any respect or consideration for us, but to elect this ticket for them. That is all."

"Senator," replied General Arthur, "you don't want me to decline in order to beat the ticket do you?"

This was such a sharp cut and so mettlesome, compared to Arthur's general softness with Conkling, that it made the Senator turn pale. Arthur, now a little aroused, again remarked:

"The vice-presidential nomination does not come to a man every day, and I think I will accept it."

On the way home from Chicago, I saw persons fresh from talking with Conkling, who was on the same train, and he was attacking the ticket with all his fertility of imputation. He directed his depreciating remarks at Garfield; and it never seemed to have crossed his mind that Arthur was on the ticket, and that, as a political friend and fellow, Arthur's merits were worth considering. Mr. Conkling says he would rather have had Blaine nominated because, though he and Blaine were unfriendly, it could be told where Blaine would stand—whether for or against one—while Garfield would be neither here nor there. The partisans of Arthur, who are numerous and generally devoted, are at this moment in Albany, calling Cornell a mutton-head, a big-head, a gut and such other terms as have been employed among politicians since the days of Jonathan Wild. During the campaign some of Arthur's friends were scarcely more respectful in their allusions to Conkling, but this was probably because they had not discerned any difference between Cornell and Conkling, regarding them as part of the same raiment. Conkling has fortified himself at Washington City with a newspaper, and the situation looks ominous for a row in the senate and party. Conkling's true position would be to keep his word, stay out of the senatorial fight, and let Depew be elected. But he depends much less on his talent than on his screwing up all the rivets in his political machine, and he will probably not allow another senator from New York who would be apt to divide Garfield's patronage with him.

German Despotism.

[From the Pall Mall Gazette.]

Those who now rage so furiously in print about Ireland and tell us that Bismarckian methods are the only way of dealing with the state of things we all deplore, that martial law will soon put down opposition, and so forth, discreetly turn their heads aside from what is going on in Germany. There the laws against the socialists are strained to the utmost limit of illegality. In south Germany action is being taken in the most ruthless manner, while family after family is ejected from Hamburg without any form of trial, and their means of subsistence cut off by the police. And this, of course, must succeed. The socialists and their friends must at once forget their grievances and fall down and worship the power which tyrannizes over them. But then the misfortune is that this is not so. The party of social democrats is making head rapidly throughout Germany at this hour. A telegram in the newspapers informs us that Herr Kaempfer has been elected for the reichstag by an overwhelming majority. Herr Kaempfer is a progressist, a member of the party which is opposed to the anti-socialist laws, and his election has been carried by a combination between the progressists and the social democrats in a district supposed to be strongly in favor of the government. Even the middle class is joining in the protest. It seems, then, that repression pure and simple, though it may keep disaffection out of sight for a time, but strengthens the organization below to act at a fitting opportunity.

There are symptoms of backwardness at Washington among the democrats in the production of the new Louisiana liar. Ben Hill is the only man who is eager for the exhibition. He should be allowed to lead out the specimen and have entire charge of the performance. There would be plenty of fun then.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 26, 1881.

A TIMELY WARNING.

The present season, east of the Cascade range, is about as practical and as severe a lecture upon the improvidence that characterizes the effort to become suddenly rich, as ever was taught to men. If it should be changed at once to the mildest of May weather, even then the losses would be of such an aggregate as to bankrupt any section having less natural resources and less recuperative power.

The breeders of Eastern Oregon have hitherto done business on an entirely different plan from those of the Mississippi valley. In the latter region the farmers raise large crops of corn, the kernels of which they feed to their oxen in the winter time, while the cobs are consumed for fuel. Every well-to-do farmer in Southern Indiana or Illinois has his dozen or half-dozen stall-fed oxen for sale at Christmas, and from that source the Chicago butcher hopes to obtain his prize beef for the Christmas holidays.

The Eastern Oregon breeder is, like the "cattle kings" of Nevada, Utah and Colorado, a man who has simply a habitation rather than a home. His house is a cabin, scarcely better than that of the nomadic miner of California's argonautic period; his fields are unfenced and bear no corn nor pease; and his table is as innocent of butter as a New York dairyman's milk of cream. He breeds solely for the block and aims to live merely by the spontaneous increase of horned brutes rather than by an enlightened system which tolerates none but the best sires and dams in the herd.

If you visit the "ranches" of these great herders you will see scores of sightly oxen that are wild as deer and bulls as savage as wolves. If you ask them why they do not feed and groom their cattle, like those of the great Kentucky breeders—Alexander, Olay or Grigsby—are fed and groomed, they will tell you it does not pay. They will argue to you that it is better for a breeder to meet a hard winter once in five years (and this is one of them) and lose a fourth of his stock than to feed and docilitate the entire herd from one year to another. It entails too much cost of hired labor and care of employes to become profitable, hence it must be left to self-preservation on the part of the lowing herds. They must not only gain their own subsistence without the cultivation or fencing of pasture lands, but also protect themselves and their young against the ravages of wild animals. This state of affairs cannot last much longer, for the waste lands are becoming rapidly eaten bare and desolate.

The cattle breeder of the future is the man whose profit is not an idle dream or a vague romance. He is the practical fellow whose fields will be producing corn and sugar beets in the bright summer days, while his flocks roam the densely wooded heights of the Cascades or Blue Ridge. And when the winter days come around his lowing steers will munch cracked wheat and steamed roots inside the barn. And this man will not need to drive his cattle to Portland, but will receive cash for them at his own doors. Thrift alone will win hereafter.

PROPOSED SEARCH FOR THE JEANNETTE.

Eastern papers are suggesting that an expedition be sent north early in the coming summer to search for the Jeannette, Lieutenant Schwatka to take command of it. It is thought that the government will aid such an enterprise which would unite the scientific purposes of the Jeannette expedition with its search for that vessel. The Herald favors such an expedition, of course, and would contribute largely toward its outfit. Holding the theory that the Jeannette is safe, it says of the proposed effort for her relief: "It is important if such an expedition is to be sent into the Arctic seas, that preparations should be immediately commenced. In the absence of any information from the American Arctic expedition the ablest geographers can but surmise what has happened, and no means for communicating them should be neglected. Unless a steamer, thoroughly fitted to battle with the ice, well manned and officered, can be despatched in the early part of next summer it will probably be too late to do anything in this direction. The Jeannette is now passing her second winter in the polar regions, whither she went provisioned for three years. But the second winter, as all Arctic travelers report, is a severe strain on those exposed to it, greatly reducing their strength, depressing the most buoyant spirits and developing disease in the weaker part of the crew. Whatever success may have attended the Jeannette, and whatever vista of promise lies before her at the close of August next, her commander will not be able to follow it up unless reinforced by fresh men, nor will he venture to spend a third winter in the high latitudes. It was the fatal error of Sir John Franklin to remain too long in the frozen wilderness, from which the enervation of his men precluded retreat—an error which, in the sad light of his fate, every competent polar explorer will shun. Could a relief vessel be sent next summer to the Jeannette and overtake her, if her exploratory work demanded more time an exchange of crews as far as desirable might be effected, and the relief vessel return home while the Jeannette might pursue her voyage another year at least. There is still time enough left to fit out an expedition which might communicate next summer via Behring Strait with the Arctic steamer if the government authorities now take the matter in hand. Even should such an expedition miss the object of its search its investigations in the polar basin would have their value, and whatever duty the government owes to the expedition already in the far north would be fulfilled."

A LOCAL MATTER.

The ordinance introduced by Councilman Kellogg on Monday evening in relation to some of the fire companies has created a great deal of comment, much of it of a character very adverse to the measure. The motive which the author of the ordinance claims induced him to present it is certainly commendable, and many taxpayers have expressed themselves favorably to it. Those who oppose it most strenuously are the firemen. Those who do not belong to the department hardly appreciate the pride which members take in it and its history, and the removal of an old company, one of the most active and efficient, the removal signifying disbandment, is an act that seems like tearing out one of the brightest pages in that history. Hence the opposition which every wholesouled fireman is likely to manifest against such an innovation. But while all credit is due the department, composed as it is of men who are generally of the class who would not suffer most in cases of fire, it must be remembered that the fire department was created for the city and not the city for the department, and therefore if the public interests can best be subserved by the change in the location of the several engines, the change should be made. We are not arguing at all in favor of the measure, nor is it at all clear that the disbandment of a company so long in the service, so faithful and so efficient as has been No. 3, would be the part of wisdom. However, the growth of the city of late years has been such that the council will be but doing an act of justice to those owning valuable property for which the department as at present located, can furnish but little or no protection, if it should place the engines further apart than are now their headquarters.

The proposition to divide Texas meets with rather more favor in other parts of the country than in the Lone Star state. The principal demand for the division comes from the "big guns" in the democratic party, who think that if the state could be so divided that it could send to the United States senate eight members instead of two the democrats might secure the permanent control of that body, or at least for a great many years, democracy would hold that branch of the national legislature. The Austin Review, concurring in the proposed division, claims that it can be made by the consent of Texas, the consent of the United States being explicitly given in advance by the terms of the resolution of annexation, in which it is stipulated that "such states shall be entitled to admission under the federal constitution." The only conditions required are that the states shall be of convenient size, and shall have sufficient population. As the division would probably give the democrats six additional United States senators, it is not likely that the legislature will long delay it. In the present condition of the party, any measure that promises to bring it even temporary strength in congress will be greedily accepted. The unfortunate part of the programme is that very many of the recent emigrants to Texas have been republicans, and with a "free vote and a fair count" there will be a majority of such people. Thus it may be discovered in a year or two that the division made specially to meet a democratic emergency has simply strengthened the republican party.

According to Dr. Nagle, deputy register of vital statistics for New York city, zymotic diseases, preventible by sanitary precautions, cause one-fifth of the mortality in that city. In numbering the victims of these diseases during 1880, diphtheria leads off with its record of 1381 deaths during 1880. Membraneous, croup, scarlet fever, measles whooping cough and typhoid fever, swell the aggregate of deaths under this head to 3884. Dr. Nagle asserts that defective plumbing, allowing sewer gas to enter the apartments of the victims, aggravated most of these zymotic diseases, and actually caused many of these 3,884 deaths, and also had a part in other of the 31,866 deaths of the year. With these facts in view he has caused to be introduced into the New York legislature a bill providing that every plumber in the city of New York shall register his name at the health department and that the list of names thus registered shall be printed in the city record, at least once a year; it requires further that all plumbing work and drainage for new buildings shall be approved by the board of health. It is claimed that with any thing like efficiency in the health department such a law will prevent thousands of deaths each year.

The reasons presented by Senator Lamar why he supports the bill to place Gen. Grant on the retired list of the army, with the emoluments which would have belonged to him, had he been retired when he held the position of general, appear to be sound, and Lamar's views are probably those of a majority of the right thinking people of the country. A man ought to lose no right which he had in any other station by being made president.

Governor Murray of Utah was interviewed at Louisville last week and said, in regard to the Cannon-Campbell controversy, that his "action in rejecting Cannon's claims and accepting Campbell's was based upon the law of the United States, which declares that naturalization papers must be on record in the proper court, and that as Cannon is a Mormon he is a polygamist and according to law a felon, to whom no certificate can be issued."

In answer to the statements made in the Canadian parliament by Premier McDonald, which we recently published, Prof. Hind repeats his charges of fraud with a statement of figures and authorities, with other instances of fraud. Certainly the Professor is ahead as the matter now stands. Canada's reluctance to investigate these charges looks bad on its face.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

AN ACTIVE CANVASS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The canvass among republicans for the speakership of the next house is very active. At least a dozen candidates are already in the field. Last week the belief was general that there was a perfect understanding that Blaine would resign his seat in the senate before the adjournment of the Maine legislature, and that Representative Frye would be elected to fill the vacancy. Acting upon this belief several members of the House gave their friends to understand that they were candidates for the speakership. The announcement that Mr. Blaine had no intention of resigning, while received with incredulity so far, as it appears to imply that Blaine will not be one of Gen. Garfield's cabinet, has served greatly to complicate the speakership question.

FRYE'S FRIENDS

Claim that, should he remain in the house, he would be elected speaker without difficulty; that he has already received voluntary assurances of support from enough members to make his election a certainty. Several of the members who would themselves be promising candidates if Mr. Frye were entirely out of the field will be found among his hearty supporters if he is a candidate. Frye's friends think that Blaine should tell him, if he can, whether there will be a vacancy in the Maine senatorship. Some of the candidates appear confident that there will, and are proceeding upon that assumption, while others are contingent candidates only. Among the latter is Mr. Hiscock of New York, who, in the event of Mr. Frye being a candidate, would support him. Hiscock's friends claim votes for him from nearly every state, and a majority of the votes from New England if Mr. Frye should not be a candidate. It is also expected that he will receive the votes of all the republican members from New York.

BURROWS, OF MICHIGAN,

Is an unconditional candidate since the nomination of Conger for senator. Burrows is now serving his second term in the house. He is an eloquent speaker, is a man of agreeable presence and manners, and possesses one of the most important requisites of a presiding officer, a fine voice. Burrows says he has received many assurances of support from members who represent states in which he has made campaign speeches, and he has traversed nearly all the northern states from Maine to California on stumping tours. He expresses considerable confidence in his prospects of election.

DUNNELL, OF MINNESOTA,

Is another prominent candidate. Dunnell expects to receive pretty general support among northwestern members, excepting those from Michigan, and claims some votes from Pennsylvania and New England.

Kasson, of Iowa, now at Vienna, is also a candidate for the speakership. He served eight years in congress, and was a member of several important committees. He is distinguished for his skill in debate, and is an excellent presiding officer.

JUDGE ORTH, OF INDIANA,

Is also announced by his friends as a candidate for the speakership. Not much is known respecting his prospective strength in the coming contest, as, until very recently, he has devoted himself to the senatorial canvass in Indiana. Judge William D. Kelley is also spoken of as a candidate who would receive the support of the greenbackers, and probably some republican votes. His prospects of election do not at this time appear to be flattering. Gen. Henderson, of Illinois, has been mentioned as a candidate. Henderson is serving his third term as a member of the committee on commerce. It is whispered that his election would be very gratifying to Senator Logan. Within a day or two

REED, OF MAINE,

Has appeared as a candidate for the speakership, and this is regarded by some as conclusive evidence that Frye will be elected to the United States senate, as, of course, Maine would not present two candidates for speaker. Reed has already received many assurances of support, especially from some of the more "stalwart" members of the house. His friends believe that he will be a strong candidate. Gen. Keifer, of Ohio, is another "stalwart" member whose friends are urging him for the speakership. His candidacy has not thus far attracted much attention among members from other states, and there appears to be a general impression that the next speaker will not come from Ohio.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]
WASHINGTON, Jan 26—1 A.M.—For Pacific coast partly cloudy weather with local rains

THE Q STREET BRIDGE.—At length the vexatious question as to the acceptance of the Q street bridge has been virtually settled by the common council and the contractor—Mr A J Watson—is to receive his pay for the work. The acceptance of the work as performed by the contractor and the question of compensation has been hanging fire for many months. Briefly stated the history of the difference is about as follows. A number of the property owners along Q street between the Willamette river and North Thirteenth street petitioned the common council last year for the construction of a bridge across the lower end of Couch's lake. The petition was granted, contract authorized plans and specifications prepared proposals advertised for and the contract awarded to Mr Watson. The plans and specifications called for the construction of a bridge similar to the Thirteenth street bridge. Through some misunderstanding or misapprehension on the part of the contractor the plans and specifications were not strictly complied with. The specifications called for timber of certain dimensions and also required that the bents should be placed a certain distance apart. In both particulars these requirements were slightly deviated from. When the bridge was almost completed the superintendent of streets and the committee on streets ascertained that the contractor had not exactly complied with the plans. They declined to accept the work for that reason and the contractor, who claimed to have lost money on the contract also declined to correct the mistakes complained of. So matters stood. Meantime the bridge was finished and thrown open to travel. As the street superintendent and committee refused to accept the work and sign the warrant Mr Watson was unable to obtain his pay. The matter has been under consideration by the council for months, during which time it has been referred to committees and rereferred. At last the property owners who at first asked to have the bridge built petitioned the council to accept the work as it was satisfactory to them, and to allow the contractor, who it is claimed has lost considerable money on account of the delay, to receive what is due him. At the last meeting of the council the petition was granted and the auditor authorized to draw a warrant in favor of Mr Watson for what was due him. So the whole matter has been amicably adjusted to the satisfaction of all concerned.

ALARMING, BUT UNFOUNDED RUMOR.—Yesterday morning some one, who had better use of his tongue than his brain, told some one else that the steamer Columbia, which sailed for San Francisco Sunday morning, had been lost on the Columbia river bar. The first some one evidently put in the day circulating the story, which, as it spread, became variously embellished, and many believed it to be true. Towards evening the rumor was the subject of conversation in hotels, offices and counting rooms. Some had it that she was wrecked on the bar, others at Tillamook rock, and still others that she had gone ashore near Cape Mendocino. Not less than fifty persons called at THE OREGONIAN office after dark, inquiring into the matter, and many seemed disappointed when they learned that the report was false. The fact is, the Columbia left Astoria for sea Monday morning at 8.10, crossed out safely, and has not been, and will not be heard from until her arrival in San Francisco. Nine hundred and ninety-nine chances in one thousand we will chronicle that event, if the wires are working, in to-morrow's OREGONIAN.

THE ENGINE QUESTION.—The East Portland correspondent of the Evening Telegram says. The citizens' meeting called at the council chamber last night to consider the fire engine question was not very well attended, the citizens, no doubt, thinking that they had better leave the matter for the present in the hands of the firemen. There was no business transacted further than a general expression of opinion on the subject, and a tacit admission that the boys were aiming to do about the right thing. Mr. I N. Sanders acted as chairman, and Mr Jno. Neppach as secretary, and it adjourned without date. The feeling among the firemen generally is, that with the help of the good citizens they will accomplish the purchase of a good engine in the near future, unless they meet with more opposition than they expect from nonresidents of East Portland.

"THE SICK ROOM."—This theme, which ought to interest at any time, seems especially opportune at present, and the lecture by Mrs. Catharine L. Henderson this evening (Jan. 26th) will certainly attract a great many hearers. In the care of the sick experience proves that a few apparently simple principles concerning sickness and nursing universally beneficial when put in practice, are yet almost universally neglected either from ignorance or carelessness. Mrs. Henderson's own wide observation, reading and personal experience fit her to speak as an authority on this field which is peculiarly woman's, to understand and fill. The lecture will begin promptly at 7 o'clock, this in order to accommodate those who wish to attend the concert later in the evening.

HORSE OVERBOARD.—Last evening the steamer [illegible] dropped down to Greenwich dock to discharge a lot of wheat. A horse used as power for the hoisting gear, while being led off the boat fell overboard and went under the dock among the piling. The driver while reaching down to get hold of the bridle as he swam past fell in himself. For a time it looked as though both horse and man would be lost, but after a few seconds the man was brought up. In the meantime the horse got outside of the piling and turned his head and struck out for the East Portland shore. He was not seen afterward. If he reached the other side he must have suffered intensely with the cold as the banks are so abrupt that a horse cannot climb them.

DAMAGED WHEAT.—All the damaged wheat (flooded by the recent high water) on Jones and Smith's dock has been cleaned up and sold to various persons principally to farmers residing near the city. This wheat, notwithstanding it was thoroughly soaked, was utilized to good purpose by the purchasers by feeding it to hogs, cows, horses and poultry. [illegible] thousand sacks of damaged grain is still on the Pacific dock. It has not spoilt yet and will not while the present cold weather continues. The wheat has frozen hard and the cold will have a tendency to dry it. So far as it is known a very small amount of the damaged grain has proved a total loss.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.—We understand that an entertainment of a very novel character is to be given in this city at an early day, and when we state that the matter is in the hands of the ladies of the Unitarian church, our citizens will be assured of its success. Two of the features of the entertainment will be the "Marseillaise," sung in costume of the French revolutionary period, and the celebrated "Addison fan drill," which will be executed by a number of young ladies in appropriate costume. This drill has become famous in the East and in San Francisco, and will long be remembered by those who have the good fortune to witness it.

I. O. O. F.—The various lodges of Salem are making extensive preparations for their exhibition at the Opera House in that city on Friday evening next. Hon. Jno. F. Caples, of this city, has consented to deliver an oration on the principles and purposes of the order, and Hon. R. P. Earhart, of Prosperity Lodge No. 2, will deliver the address of welcome. Supper will be prepared at the Chemeketa hotel for all members of the order and their families, to which all the grand officers are especially invited. Vocal and instrumental music will be supplied for the occasion and no pains spared to make the event one of the pleasantest of the season.

FOREIGN EXPORTS.—The ship Earl of Derby, which is cleared for Liverpool, carries the following exports:

" "	409 cs fruit	2,000
" "	38 cs salmon	190
From Astoria,	450 cs salmon	2,250
Total value		$73,620

THE STEAMBOAT.—The new steamboat being built by Mr. [illegible] at Vancouver, will be ready to launch on Saturday providing enough clear water for the purpose remains. She is 24 feet beam and 125 feet long and will be placed on the Portland and Vancouver route. She is owned by a corporation of Vancouver citizens and will be run regularly between Portland and Vancouver.

WOMAN'S CONCERT.—The reserve for the concert at the Market to-night shows that it will be largely attended. This is the first time that the "Woman's Union" has appealed to the public for aid and it is in charity. The theater will be suitably warmed this evening. Some desirable seats can yet be reserved at D. W. Prentice & Co's.

BACK AGAIN.—Mr Ted Marks, who represents the firm of E. Goslinsky & Co, arrived on the last steamer from San Francisco. Mr. Marks left here a few days before the presidential election for the East. Since his departure he has visited Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Galveston and Kansas City.

PAY YE!—Sheriff Buchtel desires to inform the public generally and taxpayers in particular, that he and his efficient deputies can be found at the office at the usual hours. Joseph will be pleased to furnish those who call with his autograph—at the bottom of a receipt.

PROMOTION.—Mr John W. Crawford, the efficient agent of THE OREGONIAN at Salem who has been elected mayor of that municipality will at the next meeting of the board of fire delegates tender his resignation as chief of the Salem fire department.

FIRE AT OREGON CITY.—The residence of Abel [illegible], a blind man, on the outskirts of Oregon City was destroyed by fire on Monday night. An organ and carpet were the only things saved from the flames.

LANDINGS.—Substantial and safe landings have been made by the Jefferson street ferry company at the foot of Jefferson and U streets, and the company is prepared to accommodate the public.

NEW BUILDING.—A business building is being erected near the Central school on Seventh street.

MASQUERADE BALL.—The members of A F Naef's dancing school will give a mask bal at Turn Halle, Thursday evening, Jan. 26th. Tickets can be had at A. F. Naef's, 79 Yamhill street.

Masks, Masks, Masks—any and all styles at Acker's Dollar Store.

RAW PIERCING WIND ALL DAY YESTERDAY

Snowing and Blowing East of the Cascades. The Columbia Crossed by Teams at Ainsworth

Something's the matter with Oregon this winter. First a freeze up early in December and prospects for a season's blockade. Then an unexpected thaw and—hay it is. Then another freeze up only long enough to cause uneasiness and then a deluge. And we'd just got things straightened out when that abominable east wind broke loose again, swept down the mighty Columbia, the Willamette valley kind o' turned a corner like and for twenty-four hours has been making the people of Portland feel decidedly uncomfortable.

The wind yesterday was cold and raw and came from every direction. The signal service man who has his vane stuck out of the roof of a tall three story building says it came from the northeast, but if he had to tramp all over town for news he would have found whether he walked east west north or south that the wind was in his face and was blowing dust in his eyes every time he opened them. The weather wasn't very cold, down to freezing point but it was uncommonly unpleasant. The penetrating power of the wind through overcoats and muffs and gloves and veils and furs and window frames was remarkable. Few persons were on the streets and those whose business required them to be out walked fast, as though they were practicing for a pedestrian tournament. All swinging signs having been removed some time ago passersby were not tormented with fears of broken heads and bruised limbs.

Telegrams from Eastern Oregon indicate that we in the valley are living in a comparatively tropical climate. Just think—the Columbia being frozen over at Ainsworth and crossed by teams. The barometer is higher at Umatilla than here and higher here than at Roseburg, and as the wind moves from a high to a low barometer—well we won't have a Chinook as soon as we want it.

Ice is lodging in considerable quantities on Willow bar and the Astoria boats again make trips through Willamette slough. The State, strong and powerful as she is, will find it no small task to get through the gorge Friday morning, but Capt Dubney says he'll send her along unless the ice reaches the bottom of the river.

Following are dispatches from up the Columbia:

8 30 A M

Cascades—Cloudy, strong down stream wind, thermometer 20, river full of ice, wind blew very hard all night.

Celilo—Snowing, strong down wind, ice running, thermometer 17.

Dalles—Cloudy, snowing fine and fast, river full of ice.

5 P M

Cascades—Very strong wind down stream, snows hard but does not lay on the ground on account of wind, river full of ice, thermometer 28.

Wallula—Cloudy, light down stream wind, thermometer 10, river full of running ice.

Ainsworth—Cloudy, wind northeast, thermometer 20, ice in both rivers, Columbia frozen over just above here, and they are crossing the river at the mouth of the Yakima with teams.

CONCERT AND BALL.

Turn Halle was comfortably filled last evening on the occasion of the concert given there under the auspices of the Verein Eintracht. A very entertaining programme was presented. The Fest overture, by the orchestra, under the leadership of Prof Kay, was exceptionally good. Mrs. Pitt's solo, "Come, Let each Bright Day of Pleasure," was heartily applauded. She received two handsome bouquets. Prof Smith acquitted himself creditably in a cornet solo and was encored. Profs Elwesi and Wichle each played pleasing piano solos, also Mr. W Hurka a neat clarionet solo. Mr Van Bourden's "Fruhling's Lied" merited the hearty encore received to which he responded with a selection from the "Chimes of Normandy." "Ah Fars Elui," from "Traviata," soprano solo, by Miss Rachel Manciot, was a splendid effort and was well received. She, too, was complimented with two floral tributes. By far the best part of the entertainment was the violin solo by Mr. Edgar E Coursen, which was not only skillfully executed but showed that he was a perfect master of the instrument upon which he performed. Mr Efnross' song, "Der Wanderer," was not equal to his ordinary efforts. The ball which followed the concert was thoroughly enjoyed by all participants.

STATE TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE.

The tenth annual session of the Oregon State Temperance Alliance will be held in the city of Portland, commencing on Wednesday, Feb 16, 1881, at 2 o'clock, P M. Article 2 of the constitution reads as follows. The alliance shall be composed of delegates elected annually and duly accredited from temperance societies and other organizations devoted to the interests of the temperance cause, the basis of representation being one for the organization and one for every twenty members and one for each fraction over ten. Provided, also, that any person of known temperance principles may become a member by paying into the treasury the sum of $1. The O. & C. R R Co, (east and west side divisions) will return delegates free on certificate of the secretary, full fare having been paid going. Let this session see a reunion of all the temperance workers in the state.

THE CIGAR HOUSE.—No use talking, Hirstel Bros are men for enterprise and energy. They have without exception the finest and neatest store on the Pacific coast for the business they have just added. We have often heard smokers complaining of being unable to find a good cigar for their money, but now we have the place. Hirstel Bros propose to keep only the best and freshest Havana goods of which they are importers, and they are situated so that they can and will compete with the San Francisco market and with their experience in cigar and tobacco business they will certainly be successful. They sell single or box as may suit the purchaser. Recollect the place, 106 First and 107 Front street.

The question is often asked as to who does first class work in photography as often answered—Abell. The specimens at his gallery are the best evidences of A No 1 photographic work.

THE WHITE-GOLDSMITH-SACHS-HELLER SUIT

Further Particulars of the Case. The San Francisco Merchants in Bad Faith Throughout

Late advices from San Francisco indicate that a little flutter of excitement was caused upon the announcement by the press of that city of a suit for damages amounting to $115,000 brought by Messrs. Levi, Adam White and Max Goldsmith of this city against Messrs Sachs & Heller of San Francisco, an account of which appeared in our issue of yesterday.

It appears that the latter gentlemen made overtures to the former last fall with reference to establishing a wholesale dry goods business operating in the field of operations New York, San Francisco and Portland. The proposition was discussed by the Messrs Sachs & Heller very carefully considered and finally accepted by Messrs White & Goldsmith after which articles of copartnership covering a period of five years from January 1, 1881 were drawn up and signed last November by Martin Sachs, Sanford Sachs, E. L. Heller, S. W. Heller, Levi White, Max Goldsmith and Adam White.

In December last the last mentioned, in accordance with the terms of the agreement applied to the firm for an appraisement with their business in stock in San Francisco which application was met by an unqualified refusal. Thus without apparent cause or excuse did the Messrs Sachs & Heller completely ignore an agreement not only signed by them but which was the offspring of their own projection.

The Messrs White & Goldsmith are old residents of this state. They occupy a leading position in the mercantile community here, and their universal reputation for fair and square dealing is sufficient to [illegible] that they would advance no claim not fully sustained by justice nor sign an agreement which they would not consider an equitable [illegible]. We but voice the wishes of this community in hoping that these gentlemen will be awarded the full amount of their claim.

GUARD HOUSE DELIVERY

A correspondent writing from Vancouver furnishes the following additional particulars of the escape of prisoners from the guard house there.

Several weeks ago three Indians of the Siletz agency, called Jack Kelsey, Kane Kelsey and Lewis Dick, were delivered by the interior department to the military authorities of Vancouver barracks. W. [illegible] for confinement pending their trial for murder.

Last Saturday night these Indians escaped from the guard house of Vancouver barracks in company with a military deserter named Geo F. Stokes who had succeeded in making an opening in the floor of a vacant cell, covering the signs of his work with grease and dust.

Prompt measures were taken to attempt the recapture of the fugitives and they were traced as far as Sauvie's Island at the mouth of the Willamette. It is supposed the Indians will attempt to return to the Siletz agency to join their tribe. Lieut C H Bonesteel 21st infantry, with a detail of three men is ordered from the post in pursuit to be gone a week or ten days if he does not succeed in their recapture in less time. He will be in Portland on Wednesday and would be glad to receive any information, either directly or through the chief of police, that would assist him in tracking the murderers or the deserter. The latter is a young man of rather boyish appearance, 5 feet 6 inches in height, of slender build, with dark hair and eyes, straight nose, smooth face and fair complexion. The Indians, Jack and Kane Kelsey, are short, heavy set, short-necked and square-jawed. "Lewis Dick" is short and slight, with a sheepish, hang-dog mien and gait.

The fugitives stole several articles from a citizen living near Sauvie's Island and used a large skiff belonging to him in crossing the river.

FOUND DEAD.

Benjamin Wilson the "Log Dice" Man Expires in his Bed at the St. Charles Hotel.

Late Monday evening, a stranger entered the St Charles Hotel, applied for lodging, paid the bill in advance, registered his name "B Wilson, Corvallis," and was shown to a room. Yesterday morning when the chambermaid went to the room, she found the door locked and the lamp burning low. Supposing that the occupant was still asleep no effort was made to get into the room until about dark. Entrance then was effected with a pass key, and the startling discovery was made that the man lay cold in death. He evidently expired soon after retiring, as the pillows and bed clothes, except where his body touched them, were unruffled. He was about 55 years old. Among his papers were a recommendation signed by Joseph Kellogg and L. E. Pratt dated December 13, 1878, several receipts and a memorandum book.

Coroner Garnold was notified and removed the body to his undertaking establishment. An inquest will be held this morning. Wilson came to this state from California about seven years ago and practiced a "log dice" game. This seemed to be his only occupation. He was a very quiet unobtrusive old man and had the appearance of an honest, hard working farmer. He was well known to the sporting fraternity, and attended every fair given in this state for several years with his gambling device. As far as known he has no relatives in this portion of the country.

GRAPE CULTURE IN OREGON.

OAKLAND, Jan 12 1881

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I was much interested in a summary of the census as published in THE OREGONIAN a few weeks ago. In one item there is great injustice done to Douglas county, if not to the whole state—namely vineyards or grape culture. Douglas county is credited with only 2865 pounds of grapes. All well informed persons residing in this county know that these figures are far from the truth.

One of my neighbors, E. W. Otey, has one vine that has averaged 1000 pounds for the last 8 or 10 years. Fen Sutherlin, a well known citizen of this county, has a vineyard near Oakland that produces from 5 to 10 tons annually. Being well acquainted in the county I feel sure there are 100 other farmers that raise on an average 1000 pounds each, making a much greater amount than is reported for the whole state. Strangers visiting our state and reading our census report would think we raised grapes with great difficulty, when in reality they are a drug in the markets of our state. They are so in this county at least.

Whittle vs Whittle—Demurrer overruled by answer; two days to answer.

State of Oregon vs. P. Bridge Co.—Demurrer to complaint overruled.

THE AMENDE HONORABLE.

W D PALMER. The card as published in the Bulletin of October 13, over my own name defaming your character, I now confess was done with a direct and malicious intent of injuring your character among business men and in your social relations, and the charges made were each and every one of them false as far as I know of my own personal knowledge, and the parties who told me of the things I charged against you in my card, I believe inspired them with a desire to injure you. I make this retraction feeling that I have criminally attempted to injure you, and am willing to make what reparation lays in my power, knowing nothing against you and desiring that full justice be done in the matter.

THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

The Springfield Mill Company sustained the heaviest losses by the freshet of any company in Lane county.

The greater part of the hop yard of J. H. Brown about a mile and a half above Eugene was swept clean to the gravel by the high water.

Two large fir trees, which have been standing in Front street since Salem was staked out as a city, have been cut down and made into wood.

Jas Goodchild, one of the oldest and most esteemed citizens of Eugene City, died at his residence in that place last Thursday morning.

A long bar has formed at the junction of the two channels of the river just above the bridge at Eugene. This bar throws the water of one channel almost directly against the bank and it is feared that it may cut through, forming a channel beyond the bridge.

Nearly every Lane farmer along the river who had sheep lost more or less of them. Dr Patterson had a lot of fine cotswolds, which were drowned. D Howard Thomas Gray, L. R Robinson and Jerry Luckey lost nearly all their flocks. Several hundred head were drowned in the Coast Fork bottoms.

Hiram Smith owner of the Coburg sawmill, was so unfortunate as to lose all his saw logs by the high water. About 1,000,000 feet of logs were carried away, also a considerable quantity of sawed lumber. Besides these logs, which were in his mill pond, he lost about 800,000 feet, which were banked along the river ready to run in the spring.

Eugene Guard. The gentlemen of this city who are engaged in propagating carp suffered a considerable loss by the recent freshet. The carp pond overflowed and it is estimated that nearly five thousand young fish of last year's spawn were carried out and lost. Many of them were four or five inches long and were thriving finely. The parent fish, of which there are seven, fortunately remained in the pond.

Southern Oregon.

Diphtheria in a most dangerous form has appeared in Roseburg.

The Dews farm on Applegate was sold at sheriff's sale last Saturday to August Wolf for $400.

The eldest son of Daniel Walker, of Mt Scott, Douglas county, died of apoplexy on the 15th inst.

The recent heavy rains have started the water in every mining camp and given an impetus to mining industry in Jackson and Josephine counties that promises a rich gold harvest.

A nine year old son of Hon J. N. T Miller, of Jacksonville was starting out to shoot larks on the 14th inst. when his fowling piece was accidentally discharged, the charge tearing the upper left arm to the shoulder in shreds. The limb was amputated without delay and the little fellow at last accounts was doing finely.

The Coffey Bros who have the Day & Stanley mill at Camas valley rented, will be heavy losers by the storm. All the logs in the boom, all the lumber in the yard and what provisions they had on hand, went off with the flood. The flume and mill property is badly injured. The families living at the mill had to construct a boat in which to get out, as they were surrounded by water.

Plaindealer. There is not in Douglas county a prettier little valley than Garden valley, but the recent storm did heavy damage to property there. The farm of the late B Juetner was entirely over-flowed and all fences on the place were washed away. The farm of Chas La Pointe was seriously injured, the logs in fencing and soil being heavy, as also were the farms of Messrs Larant, Labric, Gilliam, Hannan and Love.

Intelligencer. Some two years ago Thomas Hughes, a coal miner, in attempting to board a loaded train at Renton, had his foot run over and fearfully crushed. In the hope of saving a portion of that member he refused to have it amputated, until mortification had set in. He finally consented, and the leg was taken off just below the knee. He recovered and has since been afforded light employment by the company at Newcastle. For the past few months the end of the amputated limb has been troubling him so much that he came to town to have it reamputated, and last Friday the operation was performed at the hospital. It was a painful operation, as the nerves had become very sensitive and tender, but it was skillfully performed, and at last accounts the patient was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. It will be two or three months before Mr Hughes will again be able to resume his duties at the mine.

Probably one of the most valuable volumes in the possession of president-elect Garfield is the diary which he has kept for the past twenty years. It is said to be full of vivid details of war, social and political matters.

President Hayes says the story that he intends to travel abroad after the close of his term [illegible] of which [illegible]. He has never contemplated such a trip and does not now have any idea of making it.

Mrs. Bruce, the wife of the colored senator from Mississippi, was among the best looking ladies present at the White House on New Year's day. She wore a reception toilet from Worth of violet colored silk and satin trimmed with white lace and diamond ornament.

Gov. Seymour's indisposition has been greatly exaggerated and he is said to be now almost wholly recovered. It is, however, considered the part of wisdom to keep him out of discussion and all protracted conversation for the time being, and for this reason he does not see visitors.

Gen Walker has no sooner approximately arrived at the population of the United States than he goes to work on the probable number in 1890. He says he has made a very careful computation and has decided that, under favorable circumstances, the American nation will number in 1890 64,407,000.

Gen Grant is said to smoke a hundred cigars in two weeks. He gives away as many as he smokes. He has used the same brand of imported cigars for ten years. They cost $22 50 a hundred. Col Bob Ingersoll pays $50 for a box and uses from five to ten cigars a day. Gen Butler pays $10 and sometimes $20 for a box. Senator Matt Carpenter, who nearly killed himself by smoking, has been reduced to three cigars a day.

The widow of President Polk, still living at Nashville is so beloved by all parties and classes in Tennessee that her little fortune in state bonds, all that she possesses in the world, has been by unbroken consent exempted from the flood-tide of repudiation that has defaulted in the interest due to other creditors. Republican and democrat, white and black, high tax and low tax, all agree that the interest shall be paid promptly on the debt held by her.

The Wealth of Boston.

Boston, whatever may have been its adverse fortune, still remains an extremely wealthy city, as a list of its rich men and women shows. The real estate of the city is valued at $437,230,600. The personal property is estimated at $201,858,600. There is a total increase of valuation over that of 1879 of $25,766,500. It is intimated that there is a large amount of property which never comes under the observation of the assessors, or is exempt from taxation, or pays only a state tax. There are not many millionaires in Boston, but there are a great many private fortunes of $500,000 or $800,000. About $9,000,000 is raised by taxation. The rate is $15 20 per $1000. There has been a marked advance in the value of real estate and the outlook for the future is declared to be flattering. Boston has been greatly benefited by the rise in the western railway securities during the last year, but the general tendency is to invest in home real estate.

Senator Bruce in the Cabinet.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial, Ind]

We are favorably impressed by the suggestion that Senator Bruce of Mississippi should go into the cabinet. Bruce is a gentleman and we do not think of a better man for secretary of the navy. He is infinitely to be preferred to the swarms of applicants in the shape of fourth-rate southern politicians who happen to be white men. Under the circumstances, Bruce's color is a recommendation.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 26, 1881.

A YEAR OF DISASTERS.

No single feature of the year 1880, says the New York Times, is more striking than the number, variety and terribly fatal character of its disasters. The flood at the island of St. Kitts, in the British West Indies, on January 11, heads the list of calamities due to convulsions of nature alone. A loss of over 200 lives and $250,000 was the result. On April 18 a tornado destroyed the town of Marshfield, Mo., killed upward of 100 persons, wounded 150, and caused damage to the extent of $1,000,000 at least. A week later Christian county, Ill., and Macon, Miss., were visited by cyclones. At Macon 17 lives were lost, besides a large amount of property. On June 29 began an eruption of the Guatemalan volcano Fuego. On July 13 there was a terribly destructive earthquake at Manila, on the island of Luzon. Not a single public edifice was left standing in the place, even a convent 300 years old being thrown down. On the 18th of August Jamaica was swept by a storm which leveled nearly every house and every acre of crops in the island. On November 9th southern Austria, especially Agram, in Croatia, were shaken by an earthquake which caused damage to the amount of 3,000,000 florins. Finally, at last accounts, the Hawaiian volcano was still continuing an eruption of unusual extent and vigor which began on November 9.

The disasters due in part at least to human influences were not less numerous, fatal and destructive, and it is impossible not to observe in how many cases the resulting deaths are traceable to avoidable causes. On April 21 the weak walls of Madison Square Garden fell, killing four persons. On August 11 two sections of excursion train on the West Jersey railroad came in collision at May's Landing. Twenty-six deaths resulted, besides as many more serious injuries. The coroner's jury found that the "accident" was partly caused by an engineer's inability to apply the air-brakes. The language is rather more lenient than most persons would use in view of the fact that the engineer had never seen or used such brakes before the day of the disaster. A similar collision occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad, at Pittsburg, on October 9, causing 27 deaths. The verdict in this case roundly censured the employes for their carelessness and the company for its mismanagement.

A peculiarity of the marine disasters of the year was the large proportion which occurred on inland waters—on rivers, lakes or sounds—rather than on the ocean, where landlubbers, at least, feel most fear. On January 30 the English naval training-ship Atalanta sailed from Bermuda, with 300 young sailors on board, and has never since been heard from. On March 13 the Montana, of the Williams & Guion line, went ashore near Holyhead, and was a total wreck, but no lives were lost. The captain was censured for not using the lead. On June 11 the Narragansett and Stonington, plying between New York and Stonington on the route to Boston, came in collision near Cornfield Light. The 30 deaths which resulted were traced by the inspectors to a confusion of signals, due to carelessness, excitement or forgetfulness on the part of both Captains G. F. Nye and W. S. Young. Besides the loss of life, the Narragansett took fire, filled and sunk. On June 28 35 deaths were caused by the burning of the Seawanhaka, on its trip from New York to Roslyn. The fire was caused by the bursting of a flue. The United States Inspector censured the management of the boat, and the officers and owners, among whom are some of the most prominent citizens of New York, are now under indictment. On July 22 the yacht Mamie came into collision with the steamer Garland, on the Detroit river, near Grassy Island Light, and 16 of the pleasure party were drowned. In this case, also, the official investigation found both captains to blame. The officers of the Vera Cruz, which foundered in a storm off Cape Canaveral, on the Florida coast, on August 29, are bright exceptions in this dismal list, for they were praised for their courage and conduct. The lost lives numbered sixty-eight, including General Torbert. On Nov. 24 the Ortigia and the Oncle Joseph came into collision near Spezzia and 250 lives were lost. Treacherous Lake Huron is chargeable here with three fatal wrecks. Eight lives were lost with the Alcona on Aug. 29; an indefinitely large number, probably over 50, with the Alpena on Oct. 16, and 12 with the Simcoe on Nov. 24. On Nov. 6 the fine Sound steamer Rhode Island was totally wrecked by going ashore at the entrance to Narragansett Bay. The stranding was caused by excusable error of judgment on the part of the officers.

The most noticeable fire of the year was the burning of the St. Peter, Minn., asylum for the insane on Nov. 15. A lunatic set the fire because his supper was cold, and 30 lives were lost. As there were 700 inmates of the asylum, it is hard to say what the effect would have been if the naphtha which he had thoughtfully placed under the female wing had exploded as he had intended. In New York city the burning of Turn Halle, in Fourth street, on Jan. 4, caused eight deaths, besides a loss of $500,000, are due to the fire at Nos. 384 and 386 Broadway on Feb. 20. Manhattan market, at Eleventh avenue and Thirty-fourth street, which cost $1,000,000, was burned on Sept. 8. Among other noticeably large or fatal fires were the following: Seven hundred houses at Hull, Ont., on April 21, loss $3,000,000; an equal loss by the burning of oil and machinery over a territory near Bradford, Penn., 30 miles long by 3 miles wide, on May 6, and succeeding days; 666 houses at Milton, Penn. on May 14, loss $3,000,000; the Ansonia Clock Works, Brooklyn, loss $1,000,000, on Oct. 27; a loss of $1,000,000 at Pensacola, Fla., on Dec. 11; and the loss of 10 lives and $250,000 by the burning of Tifft's wall paper factory at Buffalo, N. Y., on Dec. 17.

The mining disasters were especially shocking even in this unusual list, but it is noteworthy that the most and the worst of this class are foreign. On Jan. 21, 70 deaths were caused by an explosion in the Fair Lady pit of the Lycett colliery at Newcastle-under-Lyne, England. Forty-two deaths were similarly caused at Anderlues, Belgium, on March 31. On July 15, 120 were killed by an explosion of the Risca, Wales, colliery; 165 more at Seaham, near Durham, England, on Sept. 8; 50 more at the Foord pit, Stellarton, Nova Scotia, on Nov. 12; and 86 more at the Penygraig colliery, Rhondda valley, Wales, on Dec. 10. The worst mining disaster in the United States was the killing of 9 men by a sheer fall of 800 feet in the Consolidated Imperial Mine at Virginia City, Nev., on Sept. 17.

It still remains to mention several accidents of a miscellaneous character. At their head stands the fall of barracks at Constantinople on Feb. 9, by which 200 men were killed and 300 injured. Twenty men were drowned by the caving in of the Jersey City end of the Hudson River tunnel on July 21. The conduct of Peter Woodland, the foreman, was as noble and courageous as anything on on record. He bade the eight men who escaped let out the compressed air which kept down the water in the lock, and then to save themselves, although he knew that to do so would be certain death to him and his companions on the other side of the bull's eye. The verdict was that the enterprise was a bold one, and the labor extra-hazardous, but that no one was to blame. An explosion of giant powder at San Francisco on April 16 caused 25 deaths. An explosion in the arsenal at Santiago, Chili, on Jan. 27 caused 24 deaths. The marching of troops across the wooden bridge over the Ebro, near Logrono, Spain, on Sept. 12, caused it to fall, and 97 deaths resulted.

DISTINGUISHED DEAD OF 1880.

OUR EXPORTS.

It is certainly gratifying to all true Americans to know that of late years our exports have largely exceeded our imports, not alone in such staple articles as wheat and beef, but in almost every branch of industry. Ten years ago nearly all the perfumery and toilet articles used in this country were imported from Europe; to-day we not only manufacture for ourselves, but are large exporters to South America, China, Japan and the Colonies. The immense growth of this particular industry on the Pacific Coast is simply astonishing. Slaven, who is now one of the largest cologne makers in the world, last year exported some 2,000,000 bottles of his famous Yosemite Cologne. For sale by Woodard, Clarke & Co., Portland, Oregon.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

WHO MAY BE SUFFERING FROM THE effects of youthful follies or [illegible] do well to avail themselves of this [illegible] boon ever laid at the altar of suffering [illegible] DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to [illegible] every case of Seminal Weakness or Private [illegible] case of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

MIDDLE AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Office Hours—10 to 4 and 6 to 8. Sundays from 10 to 11 A. M. Consultation free. Thorough examination and advice, $5. Call or address
